Dear Mr Swords,

I have been asked by Mr. John Gormley, T.D., Minister for the Environment, Heritage and Local Government to acknowledge receipt of your recent email which was cc'd to the Minister.

Yours sincerely,

Eddie Kiernan
Private Secretary

Re: Access to Information Request on Poolbeg Incinerator
Date: 30/8/2010

This documentation once again highlights the major abuses of power that are occurring in the Administration of the Irish State. There has been a complete failure to respond to an internal review request, so I am now going to lodge yet again an appeal to the Commissioner for Environmental Information at a cost of €150. However, this is a mere drop in the ocean compared to the losses in income and quality of environment that are occurring due to the administration systematically operating outside the legislation, see for instance:

- <http://ec.europa.eu/environment/legal/law/statistics.htm>

ord in cross-EU terms.html

None of this can be considered a surprise from a Member State, which as has been clearly established in previous Access to Information on the Environment requests, does not have a legal policy of compliance with the Environmental Acquis and in which senior elected and non-elected officials are given carte blanche to operate outside the legal framework.

Re: Access to Information Request on Poolbeg Incinerator

Date: 1/8/2010

S.I. No. 133 of 2007, which implement Directive 2003/4/EC in Ireland, require under Article 7 (2a) "That a public authority shall make a decision on a request and, where appropriate, make the information available to the applicant as soon as possible, and at the latest not later than one month from the date on which such request is received by the public authority concerned". The attached reply was posted on the 28th July and received this weekend.

Note: No attempt was made to was made to address the subject matter concerned in the two requests below, in particular the second one which related to the policy of the Department and appropriate timeframes for processing foreshore licenses. I have therefore requested an Internal Review on the second question. It is also necessary to point out that the Department's own guidance notes to the Access to Information on the Environment Regulations 2007 is clear in Section 7.2 that: "Public authorities are reminded that the objective of the regulations is to facilitate access to information to the greatest possible extent consistent with the provisions of the Regulations generally".

It is clear that Minister Gormley and his senior civil servants in the Department of the Environment, Heritage and Local Government are obstructing the necessary development of incineration capacity in this country. The manner in which waste policy is being implemented, without the necessary Environmental Report and public consultation under the Strategic Environmental Assessment Directive (2001/42/EC), was highlighted by myself recently. As was the presence of documentation to support this new policy on the Department's website, which does not comply with proper scientific and technical facts nor EU Environmental legislation with regard to waste.

Companies are simply stating that they cannot do business in Ireland anymore as the regulatory system is systematically operating outside the regulatory framework. It is not only Covanta on the Dublin incineration project (<http://www.independent.ie/national-news/us-poolbeg-firm-wants-gormley-to-stand-aside-2280588.html>

), who have been waiting since February 2008 for their foreshore license application to be process, but also StatoilHydro, who have a significant share on the Corrib project, who had to state to the media in August 2009:

- "When we look at political risk with practical consequences to project progress then Ireland unfortunately stands out as an example".

Huge financial losses are having to be carried by companies in Ireland due to officials failing to act according to the regulatory framework. Furthermore those of us in industrial development, who provided the motor for the Irish economy, are suffering huge losses in investment in the country and are experiencing major job losses. There is also the fact that the taxpayer will be expected to 'pick up' the cost of the inevitable fines for failure to meet the targets in the Landfill Directive. The Prevention of Corruption (Amendment) Act of 2001 is very clear in Article 2 (1) that; "making any omission in relation to his or her office or position ...shall be guilty of an offence". There is no doubt that Minister Gormley is obstructing this project for personal political gain. Furthermore two and a half years is a completely unacceptable timeframe for the processing of a foreshore licence and his officials have failed to (a) clarify the reasons behind this delay and (b) their policy in relation to timeframes for processing such applications.

It is clear to everybody that abuses of power are occurring.
